ROZUMIENIE TEKSTU CZYTANEGO

Zadanie 4. (6 pkt)

Przeczytaj uważnie poniższy tekst. Następnie dopasuj do każdej części tekstu (4.1. – 4.6.) właściwy tytuł (A – G) i wpisz odpowiednie litery w kratki. Jeden tytuł został podany dodatkowo i nie pasuje do żadnej części tekstu. Za każdą poprawną odpowiedź otrzymasz 1 punkt.

A.	AN EXPLANATION OF THE STUDENTS BEHAVIOUR
B.	CHEATING DOESN'T PAY
C.	AN EXAMPLE OF PUNISHMENT
D.	CHEATING AS SOMETHING DISHONOURABLE
E.	MODERN TECHNOLOGY AS A THREAT TO HONESTY AT SCHOOL
F.	SHAMEFUL STATISTICS
G.	NEW METHODS TO STOP PLAGIARISM

4.1.

In Britain, cheating in exams, or school work, is not just seen by the authorities as undesirable, it is seen by the students themselves as offensive. If you copy somebody else's essay, you're not just taking objective data from them, you're actually stealing nothing less than their own personal style and ideas. So to cheat, in the British way of thinking, is seen - like plagiarism - as somehow shameful.

4.2.

As to cheating, Polish students do not have a good international reputation. An informal study carried out by English teachers in the late 1990s, confirms this view. It found that 93.3% of students admitted to cheating at some time during the previous academic year. Cheating, it seems, is widespread in Polish educational establishments.

4.3.

In Polish schools, cheating is ignored. From a very early age, Polish children have to acquire a frightful amount of knowledge, and the weight of the books they have to carry to school and back would drive a camel to suicide. Cheating, therefore, can be viewed as a natural defence mechanism against the system, but if we go deeper we will see that cheating in school is a direct consequence of a specific mentality developed in Polish society by centuries of tyranny.

4.4.

The most recent plague is plagiarism via the Internet. Students can search by using commonly-known search engines or go straight to one of the many so-called ‘paper mills’, where hundreds of essays are on offer for downloading, usually at a very low price. In the world, where ‘creativity is great, but plagiarism is faster’, is there anything that can be done to stop the newly-born cyber-cheat?

4.5.

The consequences of cheating, if you get caught in a British school, can be serious. I remember when I was doing my ‘A’ levels in England, one boy was caught cheating in an exam. He wasn’t allowed to complete the paper. And for all the other exams he had to sit by himself at a desk up on a platform, at the front of the room, so that everyone could see who he was.

4.6.

If you want to better yourself, cheating is worse than useless. If you cheat and get away with it, you’re tempted to do the same again, not understanding that you’ve effectively done harm to yourself. You’ve cheated your school, classmates and teacher. You’ve cheated the education system and society. But most importantly, you have cheated yourself.

I am going to tell you about a funny thing that happened to my mother and me yesterday evening. ...

Yesterday afternoon, my mother took me up to London to see the dentist. After that, we went to a café. I had a banana split and my mother had a cup of coffee.

When we came out of the café it had started to rain. ‘We must get a taxi,’ my mother said. It was raining quite hard.

‘Why don’t we go back into the café and wait for it to stop?’ I said. I wanted another of those banana splits. They were very tasty.

‘It isn’t going to stop,’ my mother said. ‘We must get home.’

We stood on the pavement in the rain, looking for a taxi.

Just then a man came up to us. He was a small man and he was pretty old. He raised his hat politely and said to my mother, ‘Excuse me, I do hope you will excuse me ...’

‘Yes?’ my mother said, very cool and distant.

‘I wonder if I could ask a small favour of you,’ he said. ‘It is only a very small favour.’

I saw my mother looking at him suspiciously. ...

‘The truth of the matter is,’ the little man was saying, ‘I need some help.’

He gave a gentle smile and said, ‘I beg you to believe, madam, that I am not in the habit of stopping ladies in the street and telling them my troubles.’

‘I should hope not,’ my mother said.

I felt quite embarrassed by her sharp words. I wanted to say to her, ‘Oh, mummy, he’s a very old man, and he’s sweet and polite, and he’s in trouble, so don’t be so unkind to him.’ But I didn’t say anything.

The little man shifted his umbrella from one hand to the other. ‘I’ve never forgotten it before,’ he said.

‘You’ve never forgotten what?’ my mother asked.

‘My wallet,’ he said. ‘I must have left it in my other jacket.’

‘Are you asking me to give you money?’ my mother said.

‘Oh, no!’ he cried.

‘Then what are you asking?’ my mother said. ‘Do hurry up. We’re getting very wet here.’

‘I know you are,’ he said. ‘And that is why I’m offering you this umbrella of mine to protect you, and to keep forever, if ... if only ...’

‘If only what?’ my mother said.

‘If only you would give me in return a pound for my taxi-fare just to get me home,’ the little man said, ‘It’s a lovely umbrella.’

‘So I’ve noticed,’ my mother said.

‘It’s silk,’ he said.

‘I can see that.’

‘Then why don’t you take it, madam,’ he said. ‘It cost me over twenty pounds, I promise you. But that’s of no importance so long as I can get home and rest these old legs of mine.’

Then my mother said to the little man, ‘I don’t think it’s quite right that I should take an umbrella from you worth twenty pounds. I think I’d better just give you the taxi-fare.’

‘No, no no!’ he cried. ‘It’s out of the question!’

My mother took out a pound note. She held it out to the little man. He took it and handed her the umbrella. ‘Thank you, madam, thank you.’ Then he was gone.

‘Aren’t we lucky,’ my mother said. ‘I’ve never had a silk umbrella before. I couldn’t afford it.’

Zadanie 6. (6 pkt)

Przeczytaj poniższy tekst. Z podanych odpowiedzi wybierz właściwą, zgodną z treścią tekstu. Zaznacz jedną z czterech możliwości, zakreślając literę A, B, C lub D.

Za każdą poprawną odpowiedź otrzymasz 1 punkt.

Shoplifting is an addictive crime. There are two types of shoplifters (people who steal goods from shops): professional criminals who do it for a living, or to earn money for a drug habit; and non-professionals. Non-professionals know that there are consequences, and they usually have the money to pay, but they continue to steal anyway. These people steal items they often don’t need and sometimes don’t use.

Although people of all ages shoplift, almost one third of all shoplifters arrested by the police are between the ages of 13 and 17. Teens usually steal things that they can’t afford or are not allowed to buy, such as CDs, cosmetics, clothes and cigarettes. But many also steal things they could simply buy. Why? ‘I think, I could be spending my money on this, but I’m getting it for free,’ a teenage girl said. ‘Besides, there’s also the thrill of doing something bad. Your heart starts to race, and all you can think about is getting out of the store,’ the girl added.

Teens who shoplift often believe their actions don't really hurt anyone. They don't think that shoplifting means stealing. They think that the store will not notice the losses. They are wrong. Stores know exactly how many articles they lose, and the costs are huge. Ask teens who shoplift why they do it, and they usually say they don't know. Or they may say that it's fun; shoplifting can cheer up the mood of a teen who is feeling depressed, angry or bored. Friends can also force friends to shoplift together – to be cool.

But why? Shoplifters usually don't know the true motivations behind their actions. However, shoplifting can become an addiction. In fact, drug addicts who shoplift say it is as hard to stop stealing as it is to quit drugs. Without intervention, shoplifting can become a dangerous lifetime habit.

For teens who are just 'trying out' shoplifting, the best thing that can happen is getting caught. And the sooner, the better. When they are caught by store security personnel, they feel frightened, and the experience can stop many teens from repeating their behaviour. Shoplifting is stealing. Stealing is wrong. It's really just that simple.
